Public presentations

Motivation. Inspiration. Communication.

Our public presentations are an opportunity to uniquely and convincingly inspire your employees with an idea important for your organization. It is a chance to motivate your staff to open for a new belief, or to inspire them to take an approach that is so different from what they used to present. This is also an opportunity to inform them of what is key for your staff and for the whole organization.

Public presentations

When listening to speeches of external experts, your employees have an opportunity to gain a perspective which goes beyond their everyday work. We can present a fresh look, inspire with an idea, encourage to action and make staff engaged from the very start in a strategy and approach presented to them.

When running big and strategic development project for our clients we often run short inspirational speeches on various subjects, as parts of large conferences. We have had great successes in directing such conferences – we help prepare your managers and leaders to give presentations so that they make a trustworthy impression and evoke positive emotions among their audiences.

What can you gain if you choose us to be your motivational speakers?

Halina Piasecka

Her energy and positive attitude to people are contagious. Her sense of humour and natural charm make her audiences remember her speeches and quickly motivate people to action. Numerous anecdotes and case studies from her 15 years business experience make her trustworthy and honest as she discusses important issues.

Maciej Żylewicz

Exceptional form, interactive style and sense of humour are most characteristic features of Maciej's speeches. He engages audiences from the very start, asking riddles, telling intriguing stories, referring to key facts. He combines dialogue with the audience and humour with a significant message.
